The boys in general seem a little immature. They had nervous responses to new situations and it took them a little longer than usual to adjust. They all wanted to engage and get attention, they were just unsure of the best way to do that. They were not fearful, just unsure. Once they know how to confidently engage I know they will bond easily.

Blue - he is content to play on his own or with others. He is affectionate and is happy when getting attention. Basic puppy manners training will help him engage in a way that's enjoyable for both him and his person. He's very loving and is not concerned about personal boundaries at this point. He does redirect easily if you want him to focus his attention elsewhere. He is a happy puppy and seems to be a little more self-assured than his brothers. He has a good balance of independence and engagement.

Green - he has a cute curiosity. He likes to try and figure things out and his vocal when he's not sure how to. Strong retriever qualities. He loves toys and interacting. Has a cute and clumsy play personality. He wants attention but maybe is unsure what to do with it once he gets it. He focuses well on what's going on around him so should train easily. Training will give him a good outlet to use that curious mind and allow him to bond easily in the process. Calms nicely when handled.

Orange - he's very comfortable being handled and receiving affection. He's very patient and calm when you hold him and he likes one on one interaction. Vocal when he wants attention. He has a gentler way of engaging. He is self assured and fairly confident. No red flags. Will continue watching for Potential service or therapy candidate.

Blue dot - he works hard to get your attention as he's very motivated by human interaction. He will vocalize when he is unsure of what to do or when he wants your attention. Strong retriever qualities with good focus. Loves toys. He will be a fantastic puppy to train. It will be a great outlet for bonding.

Green dot - sweet puppy. He has good play energy, but is very patient when you hold him. He will work hard to get your attention and would prefer interacting with people over toys or independent play. He is a happy puppy who will bond easily. He calms when being handled.

Basic manners training will help him and knowing the right way to engage and get the attention that he wants.

Orange dot - strong retriever qualities. He is silly and clumsy with his play, and sure loves his toys. He loves people and calms nicely when handled. He can entertain himself with engaging toys, but is easily redirected to engage with people as well.

A little independent and doesn't require constant attention. But he's always happy to engage when prompted. He will be a nice puppy to bond with.

Blue stripe - curious and interactive. Toys are some of his favorite things and true to this litter, he seems to have strong retriever qualities. He bounces everywhere he goes and has that retriever smile on his face most of the time. He's slightly more independent than his brothers and can entertain himself. He is tolerant of handling, but will get wiggly if he'd rather be doing something else. No red flags. He should transition easily to most any home.
